

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. The left edge of the page is bound, showing the stitching and the inner cover material. The overall tone is warm and slightly yellowed, characteristic of old paper.

NUMBER 138.

[illegible]

"Even in the life and fire of battle could be waved by breath or asphyx. He was the first to be struck by the duct of the gasmain from Maine with that of Gen. Davis without giving him time to utter a word of question [laughter], and that he did not want to do that was all over."

BY THE NAME TIDE WAVE.

Those men from the South had been sitting there taking little contemptible taunts from the other side. Now the organization of the Maine soldiers was broken up and those more mained Union soldiers were appointed to outnumbering the South. The Maine soldiers and Democratic officials that had been appointed to the last Maine were now in the Maine. The gentleman from Maine in raking up the embers of the tide war, and he himself was the tide war.

day. He had no doubt the first of his kind in southern Maine. The speaker, Mr. Lincoln's secretary, Mr. Mellen took the floor and gave a most interesting address. Deane concluded. With him there had been no other speakers. The audience was composed of the southern farmers from Maine could not have been more numerous. The speaker, Mr. Lincoln's secretary, Mr. Mellen took the floor and gave a most interesting address. Deane concluded. With him there had been no other speakers. The audience was composed of the southern farmers from Maine could not have been more numerous. The speaker, Mr. Lincoln's secretary, Mr. Mellen took the floor and gave a most interesting address. Deane concluded. With him there had been no other speakers. The audience was composed of the southern farmers from Maine could not have been more numerous.

[illegible]

NOT KANSAS RECEPTION. Mr. HILL, of GEORGIA, obtained the floor, and the debate went over till tomorrow.

SPECIE RESUMPTION.
A-CORNER.

Special Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.—The currency question is one that will not be put off much longer, and the introduction of the bill has tant bills in the House to-day by leading Democrats to provide for the resumption of specie payments and the refunding of the treasury.

[illegible][illegible]

the gentleman asks me, will make me will allow me.

that the gentleman states is in the first place is not a question of fact, but a question of policy. I do not know, and I do not intend to ask the committee-room to urge any particular course, but I do intend to make it known to the committee in response to it without objection, and I think the gentleman is in the ordinary of allowing that bill to pass, had that time.

is a great disappointment to hard money men. It has the purpose to take the money out of circulation and to facilitate the resumption of specie payment without delay. It is, in fact, little more than a bill for an interest-free loan of one percent forty-year money.

REPEAL.

There appears to be great unanimity of feeling among the Democratic members of Congress in favor of the repeal of the act of August 9, 1862, and any effort in that direction will secure a good many votes.

The bill introduced in the House to-day by Mr. McKim, of New York, for the repeal of the act of August 9, 1862, and provide for a return to specie payment, has been referred to the committee on the currency.

[illegible][illegible][illegible]

offer any more amendment in the bill. The speaker then proceeded to give some news of this, saying that he had been out to catch he would feel a good deal better. He then said that he took a twist at a mile's tail to him and he did not look as well something. [Boisterous laughter.] The gentleman from New York [in the gallery] then said that he had been out to catch he would feel a good deal better. He then said that he took a twist at a mile's tail to him and he did not look as well something. [Boisterous laughter.] The gentleman from New York [in the gallery] then said that he had been out to catch he would feel a good deal better. He then said that he took a twist at a mile's tail to him and he did not look as well something. [Boisterous laughter.]

[illegible]

